Project summary:

The “aktivirAJMO” project, implemented by the ISKRA Waldorf Initiative Association in partnership with the Breza Association, Vukovar Kindergarden 1, and Blago Zadro Primary School, spans 15 months and takes place in the city of Vukovar. The project targets vulnerable groups of children (children at risk and children belonging to the Serbian national minority), children from the general population, their parents, educators, and school staff, as well as employees of civil society organizations (CSOs).

Research highlights several challenges faced by the target groups, including national divisions between Croatian and Serbian communities, social exclusion of at-risk children, high unemployment, and poverty. The project aims to foster intercultural dialogue and improve the quality of life for the target groups by responding to their needs through the development of new working methodologies and the implementation of relevant educational programs designed to empower vulnerable groups.

The project is carried out through six modules focused on strengthening social justice, democratic culture, and social inclusion for vulnerable populations.

The expected outcomes include reduced social exclusion, enhanced intercultural dialogue, and improved coexistence within the local community.
